

MORNING APPEAL.

WEDNESDAY MARCH 1, 1881

SOMETHING REGARDING HESKETH.

The Tribune, of last night, says: "An English gentleman now in this city says that it is within his knowledge that the yacht, the Lancashire Witch, in which Sir Thomas Hesketh came to this country, was purchased and fitted out by his creditors for him to cruise around the world in search of a millionaire's daughter for a wife. It is well understood in England that the majority of American heiresses are glad to exchange their coin for a titled husband."

The above is quite correct. Hesketh is an English nobleman who is, as they say, "in the hands of the Jews." He once owned immense estates, and mortgaged them for large sums, which he squandered. He is now wholly owned by his creditors, who are Jews, and, as is frequent in such cases, a scheme was arranged by which he could travel about in style until he could bag an American heiress, who would be glad to exchange a good bank account for a title. Lord Hesketh and his yacht captured Senator Snaron's daughter, and his big reception at home, of which the papers have been so full, was paid for by his creditors. In spite of all these incumbrances on Hesketh, he is spoken of as an intelligent, manly fellow who has simply been unfortunate. His method of securing a wealthy wife may be considered somewhat peculiar on this side of the water, but in England it is recognized as perfectly legitimate.

DAGGETT HEARD FROM.—It appears from a Washington dispatch that Congressman Daggett has been alive to the interests of his anti-railroad constituents. The Congressional Record, distributed yesterday, contained an elaborate speech prepared by Representative Daggett for delivery on the Inter-State Commerce bill, but in default of that measure coming up for discussion before the expiration of his Congressional term, he obtained leave last Friday to print it in the Record in connection with the recent joint resolution of the Nevada Legislature illustrative of railroad discriminations in that State, and praying for the passage of the Reagan bill to prohibit such discriminations. Daggett's speech fills ten pages of the Record, and it is supplemented with nearly as many pages more, in which are given the complete freight charges of the Central Pacific Railroad, both for California and Nevada. It is the most comprehensive and forcible presentation of the matter complained of that has yet been published in that part of the country, and the friends of the Reagan bill hail it as a welcome and valuable addition to their resources for reviewing their efforts in the next Congress.

MORE MALES THAN FEMALES.—The Census gives the following approximate distribution of the total population of the country among the several cases: Males, 25,509,882; females, 24,622,284; native of United States, 43,475,500; foreign born, 5,667,500; whites, 43,404,877; colored, 4,567,151; Indians and half-breeds not in tribal relations on reservations under the care of the Government, 65,123; Chinese, 105,483; other Asiatics, 250. The number of colored persons to each 100,000 whites is 15,155, against 14,528 in 1870. The number of females to each 100,000 males is 96,519, against 97,891 in 1870. The number of foreign born persons to every 100,000 natives is 15,359, against 16,875 in 1870.

"SUNDAY TALKS," BY J. J. OWENS.—The APPEAL has just received a volume of poems and sketches, from the pen of J. J. Owens, editor of the San Jose Mercury. The volume is made up of short editorials on thoughtful topics culled from the columns of the author's newspaper, which tell of audacious application and observation, written in a pleasing and interesting style, and full of good "meat" for people who read with the intent of benefiting their minds. Two poems contain some genuine flights of fancy, and are well worth spending one's idle hours with.

The New York Evening Post has the reputation of being one of the most reliable and conservative papers in New York, yet it says in a late issue, while discussing the money-lenders or national banks' opposition to the Refunding bill, over which these had men tried Friday to create a panic: "The very life-blood of the people will be sucked out by the greedy vampires who grow more insatiable with impunity, and who, already swollen nearly to bursting, still plot and strain for further accumulation."

The Brooklyn clergymen are considering the propriety of a revival movement, not so much, apparently, to bring in new members as to wake up the old ones. At their meeting Mr. Pentecost said incisively, that "in the early days of the Church 3,000 converts were made by one sermon, and now it takes about 3,000 sermons to make one convert."

The cards of invitation for the inaugural ball are very handsomely engraved. They are ornamented with the heads of General Garfield and Arthur and Washington and pictures of the Capitol, the eagle and the national banner. In the left hand lower corner of the card of admission is a very suggestive "5 dollars."

General Butler told a New York reporter that after reading General Schofield's testimony at the Whittaker court-martial, he "came to the conclusion that Whittaker bit off his own ears."

An 1,800 pound slab from Nenevah with a King nearly seven feet high cut in it, has been sent to Boston. It is supposed to have been made 800 years before the birth of Christ.

The London Spectator says the Irish hate the English because the nervous, excitable, poetical organization dislikes the duller, stronger and more barbarous.
